My New Friend

Yesterday I met a new friend. Her name is Karem. Most people would think of Karem as being different. She repeats a lot of words she hears and makes funny body gestures sometimes. This is because Karem has a disability called Autism that makes her do these things. But I think Karem is just like me. She likes to play the same things I like to play. She even likes the same songs as I like! We must have sang and danced for over an hour! We had so much fun! I am so happy I met Karem. I really like my new friend.
